

THE SOCIAL STUDIO

ANNUAL REPORT 2009-10

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

In March 2009, The Social Studio was little more than an idea among a small group of people who believed in that idea. At times, the challenges to making it a reality seemed insurmountable. But it was an idea driven by the urgent need of the young refugee population for access to education, employment and social recognition commensurate with their skills and capabilities. Alongside this was a need to develop more environmentally sustainable practices within the fashion industry and a growing awareness within the local community of the ethical imperative to support Fair Trade within the hospitality industry.

The Social Studio meets all of these needs. It is now a fully fledged training establishment, a retail space, a café and a drop-in centre where people, who—due to their prior experiences—often feel uncomfortable in more formal settings, come to learn and to demonstrate their talents and skills. It is also a place where members of the broader community come to purchase one-off garments, garments that they will treasure. Some come simply to enjoy the ambience, the food and the excellent coffee. Those who come admire what they see.

It has been through the efforts and support of many people and organisations that this project has come to fruition: board members, staff, volunteers, financial supporters, sponsors, partners, and of course, the students themselves. After a long search for a suitable location, board members and others rolled up their sleeves to do the fitout—brilliantly designed by our volunteer architects. The Studio first became operational in 31 August 2009. Just three months later, it launched its first collection—tribute indeed to our wonderful teachers and the commitment of the students.

Since then, The Studio has gone from strength to strength—expanding the courses and employment offered, building up the café and diversifying its sales strategy to include selling at mobile and temporary locations and on consignment. It will continue to grow, along with the confidence of the people it supports. Sadly, it is unlikely that it will ever fully meet the needs it set out to address—they are so great—but hopefully, in proving the viability of its model, it will blaze a trail that will encourage the birth and development of similar organisations.

Congratulations to all involved in setting up and supporting this wonderful organisation.

Gillian Essex

MESSAGE FROM THE CEO

The Social Studio is an incredible place, thanks to the hard work of many people who saw merit in the idea at an early stage and helped give it life. Our Board of Management have been active, involved, dedicated and skillful in creating and implementing our development and growth. We have had a wonderful group of volunteers who have helped us with everything from accounting and marketing to building and picking up important supplies. We have been faced with a myriad of challenges in our start-up and yet it feels like we have been at our home in Smith Street for a decade. It amazes me to be able to come to work each day to such a dynamic place which has heart, integrity, humour and such a strong community fabric. Thanks to everyone for sharing in the journey.

MISSION

The Social Studio is a non-profit social enterprise and our sole purpose is to create meaningful and long term social change for young people who face barriers to employment and education.

The Social Studio is a dynamic space where clothing is created from recycled and excess manufacturing materials. The Social Studio empowers young people from the refugee community in Melbourne to achieve their dreams through work experience and training in clothing design, production, retail and hospitality. The main social barriers that we address are unemployment, isolation and difficulties accessing education and training.

The Social Studio addresses these problems in four ways:
creating jobs;
providing training;
encouraging community engagement and social inclusion.

The Social Studio is a safe place of belonging that strives to create awareness and change public perceptions for people who have experienced being a refugee. We provide social support including legal advice, counselling, tutoring, driving and referrals for housing and medical assistance. The Studio also enables community engagement through its program of workshops and public events. We are an environmentally sustainable and ethical enterprise.

THE ENTERPRISE

There are three core aspects to the “business” of the Social Studio:

- The design and making of clothing
- Sales of fashion merchandise made on premise
- Preparation and sale of coffee and cafe food.

Products

The Studio sells clothing under two labels: Remixed Design & The Social Studio

Remixed Design

This label is created through the re-working of reclaimed garments from the fashion industry which are sold at a lower price point and are therefore more accessible.

The Social Studio

The Social Studio is a designer label that features a range of designs produced collaboratively by Studio students along with mentors from the fashion industry. It is produced to extremely high quality controls, is produced in a range of sizes and sells at a higher price point.

Sale of goods

Garments produced at The Social Studio are sold in a number of retail outlets, including partner enterprises Hunter Gatherer and the Red Cross. The Studio is a shop-front which provides a showcase of our product. Mobile pop up shops designed by RMIT roam the CBD and provide opportunities for employment in retail, as well as increasing our income through sale of goods. All goods are sold on consignment with designers receiving commissions on the sale of goods. Any profits are invested in developing more employment and training opportunities for refugee youth.

Café

Our café serves Fair Trade coffee and our menu features vegetarian food with an East African/Middle Eastern theme. It is open 7 days a week and provides training and employment for 6-8 staff.

Environment and Social Sustainability

The Social Studio is a pioneer in creating an enterprise that is both environmentally sustainable and ethical in its operation:

All goods are created from reclaimed materials.

All goods are produced on-site at our Studio, sustaining the local manufacturing industry.

All goods are produced within ethical working conditions.

Our production methods and employment model has Ethical Clothing Australia accreditation.

THE FIRST YEAR - OUR JOURNEY

Strengths

Importance of networks of skilled and practical people being involved – from designers, architects, literacy specialists, journalists and, importantly, community representatives from the new and emerging communities.

Willingness to take on risk – in management and at the Board level. Learning as the social enterprise develops, being constantly flexible and testing and trialling what works.

Tapping in to the big changes that are currently happening in the market where people are looking to spend more ethically.

Challenges

Finding and taking on a commercial lease of a shop-front. The issues were resolved by taking over the lease from another shop who wanted to get out of the building.

Very difficult to get infrastructure money. Need to constantly be thinking 6 months to a year ahead about where to leverage funding. Balancing social and economic goals –because the social goals cannot be compromised, the economic viability takes longer to develop.

EVALUATION HIGHLIGHTS

Sixteen Studio members were interviewed in May 2010.

All identified a positive change in themselves in one or both of the following:

- A new way of thinking about the future
- A positive change in feeling about themselves

All spoke of working in the future as designers, running their own clothing business, or using the skills they have learnt to help others. All valued and recognised the Studio as an opportunity unlike any other. Some discussed their experience of racism, stereotyping, injustice and difficulties in finding work or training and education. The Studio has clearly addressed employment and education needs for this group of participants. The model of engagement it uses to do this means that issues of social isolation and community engagement are also addressed.

Those interviewed described:

- an increase in confidence
- a sense of achievement
- feelings of safety
- camaraderie & belonging
- support and acceptance

One described themselves as no longer depressed. A majority felt excited about attending the Studio and felt a sense of pride in their work. Others described feelings of being valued and admired by the public who came into the Studio to buy or observe.

According to the United Nations,

there are 11,400,000 refugees worldwide.

Australia takes 0.1% of the world's refugee population per year.

Australia receives only 1% of the world's asylum seekers.

Last year, Australia's refugee intake was only 7% of our annual permanent migration.

Statistics compiled from data published by the Department of Immigration and United Nations Refugee Agency.
